

JUST IN: SARS Lifts Tax Return Threshold

The SA Revenue Service announced on Tuesday that it has lifted the tax return threshold from R350 000 to R500 000.

This means that only people who earn more than R500 000 per year will need to file tax returns, commissioner Edward Kieswetter said at a media briefing in Pretoria.

“I must warn taxpayers that making false declarations is fraud and has serious implications,” added Kieswetter.

Taxpayers who are registered for e-Filing or make use of the new SARS Mobi-App can file their income tax returns from July 1.
